

Chapter 1: The Angels at Work

1.1 The Angelic Mission

Once upon a time, long ago, a small shepherd boy tended his flock by night. The sky was moonless and clear. The air was crisp. Millions of stars and hundreds of angels looked down upon the boy and his flock. He looked back. From the shepherd boy's point of view, except for the sun, moon, and stars, heavenly light coming to the Earth is invisible. From the point of view of the angels, the Earth's etheric field and the delicate glow of light coming from the small shepherd boy is easily visible.

At the very beginning of Earth time, eons before there were sheep to tend, even before the dinosaurs wandered the planet, the angels looked down from their places in the heavens only to see the darkness that shrouded the Earth. They did not fully appreciate the difficulties of the task that lay ahead. The guardian angels, still in their discarnate forms as light bodies in the heavens, had volunteered to be the planet's caretakers, to bring Earth out of the darkness. Their mission was to lead Earth and its inhabitants into enlightenment.

Since the very beginning, guardian angels have been in place in the heavens. They facilitated the movement of empowering energies in many Universes and dimensions long before the descent into matter. The moment had come to work with the Earth. Moreover, once living beings began arriving on the planet, the angels took on the role of guardianship. They carried the responsibility of protecting and nurturing those who incarnated.

The angelic ones understood the divine wisdom and knowledge encoded upon the frequencies of light that had been sent to Earth. However, very little of the light sent at the beginning of the journey would arrive on the planet. The angels were not nearly as familiar with the light frequencies that actually crossed into the third dimension and descended into physical density as they were with the light of the heavens. Did the light, which successfully made it onto the Earth, still carry the divine wisdom and knowledge it had in the heavens? The enlightened ones could not know. They were not on Earth in physical form. Their understanding of light on Earth had no foundation in experience.

So, how did the heavenly guardian angels bring light to Earth? Angels have sent light to Earth since the beginning. They gathered it together from the far reaches of the universe, bundled it into packets, and then beamed the frequencies towards the planet. Some frequencies bounced off the Earth's etheric magnetic field and out into the void of the physical universe. Some frequencies remained suspended in the etheric field. Some of the more compatible frequencies managed to find their way onto the planet's surface.

In the beginning, the Earth's density severely hampered the assimilation of light into physical form. Quite often, the light that could not assimilate wandered about the Earth for a time then leaked back out into the void. On the other hand, if the light remained, dense mass grounded it so effectively that it became unavailable to any other physical form. Regardless of the problems of leakage and of excessive grounding, by broadcasting beams of light, the guardian angels made light available. As light anchored into physical form, Oneness¹ very slowly took root.

The guardian angels sought many means to bring light to Earth. One way was to create openings in the Earth's etheric magnetic field. The angels parted the Red Sea, so to speak. They worked with the Earth's grid patterns to alter the shape of the etheric field. The re-configured field would allow light to enter onto the planet's surface with relative ease in greater quantity and intensity. Light frequencies simply passed through the resulting hole, thus bypassing the scrutiny of the etheric magnetic field.

In a another effort, the guardian angels empowered geographical locations on the planet's surface. They searched among numerous galaxies and dimensions for light frequencies that they thought might be compatible with the Earth. Then, they carefully observed places on Earth where light collected. By sending the light to the places that held light, they created sanctuaries of light. These "hot spots" made sending light to Earth easier.

¹ For a comprehensive understanding of Oneness see section 1.2 in The Story of Light, Volume 1. Briefly, Oneness is the combination of the two parts of God: light and form. The purpose of the spiritual journey is to create circumstances that enhance the assimilation of light into physical form to achieve Oneness.

Following the arrival of incarnate beings on Earth², the angels had another way to bring light to Earth. The assistance of living entities is covered in greater detail in a number of places in this volume, and especially in the chapter on souls. In effect, the Oneness of the individual on Earth joined with the Oneness of the higher planes to initiate the flow of light. The guardian angels often guided persons, whose vibrations were strong, and therefore up to the task of participating.

Almost without exception until more recent times, the vast majority of light anchoring took place without the individual's conscious understanding of the process or its significance. Whenever an individual was aware enough, the Earth's angelic guardians joyfully provided the necessary guidance. It came as voices or visions that the individual understood. Essentially, guidance was an intuitive knowing to which the individual could wilfully respond.

The guardian angels, by using the openings created in the Earth's etheric field, the sanctuaries of light, and the participation of individuals, sent light onto the physical plane whenever possible. The enlightenment of the physical plane was a lengthy process. Light was entering into a dimension that had never before experienced light. Having chosen to be the caretakers of Earth, the angelic guardians observed and innovated, and ² Incarnate beings on Earth originate from the souls of their higher selves. The souls of human persons incarnate into human form. The souls of cats, dogs, chipmunks, trout fish, and elm trees, for example, incarnate into their respective forms. Souls of higher beings, such as the angels, and negative beings also incarnate onto the Earth. The word "incarnation" is used for any physically manifest entity that originates at some level of the higher self, including the physical forms of the fallen angels such as Lucifer.

then found ways to bring light to Earth.

1.2 Earth's Angelic Cadres through Time

All light given to Earth originates with the divine creative source. At all dimensional levels, beings of the light that are empowered with the capacity to create light frequencies, do so through the word of the divine. The mission of the light-workers is to use their creative power to extend the light forward into the universe. This mission is their contribution to the bringing of God's light to darkness.

Each light-worker projects its enlightened Oneness outward from its place in the inter-dimensional heavens into the areas of the darkened universe in which it has chosen to work. Where a number of light-worker souls choose to work in the same part of the universe, their grouping constitutes a cadre of angels. The universe contains an unlimited number of inter-dimensional regions and numerous cadres for each region, including the Earth.

The cadres of angelic light-workers that have come to serve the Earth each belong to the planet's divine plan. For example, the Council of Twelve coordinates the light given to the Earth. It oversees the flow of divine light that causes Earth's physical form to become Oneness. Having responsibility for the planet's evolution, the Council of Twelve has under its wing a host of sub-cadres that have their own unique role in bringing light to Earth. Included among the more recognized of these sub-cadres are the Legions of Michael, the Emanuel Group, the Councilate of the Ascended Light (who provided the information for this book), the Great White Brotherhood, and Seth. Some cadres, such as the Great White Brotherhood, have played a significant role in the evolution of the planet from the first moment of its descent into matter. Other cadres, such as the Councilate of the Ascended Light, have "dropped-in" to contribute during significant moments in Earth's journey. Each cadre comes with a specialized purpose.

In the early stages of the planet's third dimensional existence, one group of the Earth's prominent light-workers were the master technicians who designed and created the human physical body. The body served the evolution of the soul by acquiring and anchoring light in the third dimension, thus giving the soul third dimensional experience. The evolution of the body is the accomplishment of a cadre called the "Brothers of the Light of Man". The human race takes its name from these early light-workers. Similar to many other cadres, the Brothers of the Light of Man had only one task to complete. When their work was done, they departed.

The next angelic cadre of significance manipulated the Earth's etheric magnetic fields during a short period of less than a millennium. By creating openings within the etheric magnetic patterns, these light-workers birthed many new light frequencies onto the planet. During this epoch, a significant number of the more prominent geological minerals of light arrived on the Earth's surface. Ruby, diamond, gold, and silver are among them. The angelic brothers (gender-free), who came together to form this cadre, did not remain on Earth long enough to concern themselves with any identifying remembrance. After they had manipulated the opening of the etheric field to allow the vibrations of the minerals to enter, they dispersed. Their contribution was to bring a list of vibrations that came into use by the emerging human specie, as well as, other vibrations that were more directly involved in bringing light to Earth.

Once the planet had a sufficient reserve of light built up within its material substance, and once the etheric magnetic field of the planet had evolved enough to attract the higher and subtler light frequencies needed to initiate the long journey toward planetary enlightenment, the more valuable work of empowering the planet began. The Great White Brotherhood stepped in to volunteer. This cadre consists of numerous branches each of which coordinates a variety of activities to bring light to Earth. As an example, the holy temples of ancient Tibet are under the guardianship of the masters of Om-Ana-Ka-Ra. Once these temples had completed their service by bringing the quantity and quality of light that the divine plan had assigned to them, their mission ended. The Om-Ana-Ka-Ra cadre dispersed thereafter. The destruction of Tibet began within a short period of decades after their departure.

The Great White Brotherhood is the foremost cadre of importance concerned with the light of the Earth. They are the group of guardian angelic souls who have guided the evolutionary progress of the planet into its current state of vibration. Some of the other important cadres include the followers of Gabriel, the legions of Archangel Michael, the Joshua Group, and the Councilate of the Ascended Masters. These individual cadres embrace great souls that have offered their services to the planet through incarnate intermediaries on Earth. The later ones, the Councilate of the Ascended Masters, consist of Earthly souls that have already achieved enlightenment and the grace of ascension. Its members achieved release from their Earthly bondage during earlier millennia, and chose to return to continue their work.

Throughout Earth's history, the role played by the Great White Brotherhood has been especially to help humanity to rise into the realms of the awakened ones. The role of the Ascended Masters was to bring about the union of the light body with the physical body. In this dawning new age, Metatron, Melchizedek, and the Archangels, who are the caretakers of the universe, oversee the final preparations for the acceleration of Earth into its new vibrational octave.

1.3 The Shared Light of Angels

On Earth, we create furniture to sit on, tools to work with, paintings to look at, and automobiles to take us to our destinations. In the heavens, our souls create us. In the Godhead, God creates the heavens along with the souls and angels that go with it. Each level of consciousness possesses its own creative ability. The specific light frequencies involved distinguish one level of creativity from another or one creative group from another.

Throughout the universe, souls move and coordinate the flow of light from the Godhead and from within their own creative centers. Wherever these souls come together, they form aggregates of Oneness. The aggregates offer a stronger presence of Oneness for the purpose of acquiring or generating specific light frequencies in common.

Light has its own hierarchy of importance and priority. Some frequencies have more or less intensity, thus bringing more or less of the qualities of the enlightened presence from whence they came. Consider the concept that the soul lends itself to the frequency that it desires, and gravitates towards it. The hierarchy of light, which radiates out from the Godhead, splits into frequencies that the angelic hosts want and with which they choose to move. The angelic ones possess an identity separate from the Godhead and belong to separate lineages of consciousness. Each has its own unique name. These life forces have a particular frequency in common, and therefore, share a common identity.

Wherever the cadre, lineage, or grouping of angelic souls makes its home, a specific frequency carries the group's divinely assigned task codes. The will of God projects outward through the task codes. The group is then responsible for the acceptance of its specific light frequency, and responsible to carry out its encoded pattern of activity according to its task in compliance with the divine plan.

The divine plan lays out the will of God, but does not include the creative power necessary to bring the group's assigned task into reality on Earth. The angelic cadre or group, to whom the plan assigned the task, holds its mandatory creative powers within as potential, which awaits expression. The cadre will always have the creative ability to do its work. Success, however, requires the creation of the necessary light frequencies from within its members' own bodies. Because the cadre members faced the formidable density of the physical plane, they could not depend on light from the Godhead or from other outside sources. Their ability to produce light from within was essential to their growth as their service to the physical plane evolved.

There is strength in numbers. On Earth, the unified efforts of a number of souls having the same charged group consciousness results in the emergence of a combined energy—a more powerful flame. The individual accomplishes more because he has access to more energy when he is part of a group. To participate with the group, the individual souls of the cadre extend themselves into incarnate form on Earth in the same sphere of activity, if not into the same place. The cadre's incarnations strengthen their ability to generate the light frequencies needed to fulfill their creative potentials by participating in unison and by sharing light frequencies with each other.

The leader of the group on Earth is the first person to assimilate the necessary frequency, and then to share that frequency with others of the group. By sharing, the inter-dimensional connection develops between the cadre and its incarnations. First, soul establishes a connecting pathway with the leader; then it establishes pathways with the other persons who have assimilated the frequency in common. Eventually, all of the followers receive the common frequency through their own soul connection. Thereafter, the leader's importance will diminish. Ideally, the group then functions as a unit. Its members flow with the energies of the encoded light frequency in common as sent from the members of the cadre still dwelling in the heavens.

The individual soul invariably participates in the mission on Earth using a number of frequencies that are in common with different light beings or incarnations. Each group shares one common frequency. For each frequency, the souls that choose to participate then incarnate onto the Earth. Their individual incarnations are responsible for evolving into enlightened beings that are capable of wilfully attracting their cadre's specific light frequencies. As a result, light comes to Earth and flourishes through the group consciousness.

Many groups on Earth receive light through the efforts of their souls' cadre, but, to do so, alignment with the higher realms is mandatory for any amount of light to flow. These alignments are never in conflict with other alignments originating from other soul cadres. True alignments exist in Oneness and harmony. However, seldom do the descending frequencies and their intended incarnations achieve a state of peace, once they arrive on the physical plane. All too often, the illusions that grip individuals create imbalances that upset and even sever the connection they have with their souls. Humanity's ability to live in tranquility is vulnerable to the distortions that light frequencies experience upon encountering Earth's physical density. Distortions cause imbalances that in turn cause fear, loathing, hesitation, and other negative dispositions. The great tasks of the divine plan go on hold in the face of the illusions and negativity with which humankind veils itself.

1.4 Participating on Earth

The evolution of the consciousness of both the soul in the heavens and its Earthly extension is dependant upon their ability to align with each other and to exchange light frequencies. This applies not merely to individual souls and their incarnations that share common frequencies, but also to groupings of souls and their incarnations. More crucially, exchanging light is important to their collective ability to fulfill the will of God.

To successfully act upon the will of God on the physical plane, the members of a soul group begin with the light shared in common. The Councilate of the Ascended Light and the writer of this book, for example, share light in common. Light frequencies held in common precisely reflect the group's level of conscious development. Some cadres work with the higher ranges of light to achieve tasks related to higher vibration; other cadres work with the lower ranges. All tasks are important, and all frequencies hold reverence without judgment.

The flow of light to and from the heavens depends upon both the soul and the soul's human extension. Every soul is capable of projecting light to its incarnation. Some heavenly cadres, however, are more adept than are others. Older souls are very capable. Younger souls tend to be less experienced and therefore less capable.

Young or old, the soul works from the heavens. Nothing happens, however, without the person on Earth. If the person has not awakened to higher consciousness, the light available from the soul will not be assimilated. On the other hand, if a person's consciousness has awakened, she may even be aware of working with her soul. Such a person receives soul-sent light easily. Whenever the individual brings the light frequencies common to her cadre into the Oneness of her physical body, the encoded will of God establishes itself within her consciousness. The light becomes a part of her consciousness on the physical plane, and thereby, part of the soul's consciousness also on the physical plane.

With the encoded light acquired, the will of God reveals itself through the tasks carried out by the individual on Earth. Each cadre of souls awakens to divine instruction following the step-by-step assimilation of light frequencies sent from the Godhead. Each member soul of the cadre receives the same set of frequencies having the same set of general instructions. The individual's tasks involve bringing light into physical form in the way prescribed by the encoding and according to the divine plan.

Tasks manifest according to plan to reflect the day-to-day lives of anyone contributing to the well being of humanity, whether the contribution is large or small. The architect builds an aesthetically pleasing building; the mail carrier spreads good will along her route; the diplomat helps resolve conflict between warring nations; and S. Roger Joyeux, as author, explains the intricacies of how light works. Individuals need not look far beyond the activities of their own lives. Each creative act a person performs is a contribution.

In the heavens, the arrival of light frequencies comes because of the soul's will to align with the Godhead. Each frequency advances the evolution of the soul along its path. The soul accepts the encoded light frequencies for each step in the plan, implants them into its heavenly light body, and then moves them into its incarnation's physical form. The empowerment of the person's form with light is important to the soul because the soul remains contractually bound to serve the Earth until its incarnation becomes enlightened. Following enlightenment³, the soul works with its incarnation to bring light onto the physical plane directly and is responsible for doing so.

The use of the common frequency of a cadre of angels causes its member souls to focus on their specific tasks. They must assimilate the cadre's frequency within their heavenly light bodies then send it to their Earthly extensions. The cadre's common frequency on Earth must wait for persons to develop the ability to connect with their souls. Unenlightened persons, who have not yet invoked their light bodies into their physical bodies, are eligible to work with their souls, and conversely, not all enlightened persons do so. Using both the cadre's common frequency and the vibration of that frequency are dependant first upon the state of evolution of the connected person and second upon the collective consciousness of the cadre's incarnations on Earth. As the common frequency's vibration rises, so too, does the importance of the work of the cadre.

For example, the common frequency of the Councilate of the Ascended-Light is focused upon (and limited to) the light of the ascension. Because the Councilate is here to assist in humanity's ascension, each of its members receives the grace to ascend well in advance of our current epoch. Further, the member soul must actually use its opportunity to ascend to the vibrational level of those Councilate members that have already ascended. This, however, does not automatically relieve the individual soul from being bound to Earth.

The majority of the Councilate's incarnations are the extensions of liberated, non-bound souls. They chose to continue to work for the Earth's evolution, even after achieving enlightenment and ascension, and even though they are not required to stay here. Such souls possessed the opportunity to ascend, did so, and then chose to return to serve God's will. They agreed to stay for the duration. Upon returning, they entered the realm of "no-passage" through the ascension until the moment-of-truth, when, in this lifetime, Earth achieves its enlightenment and ascends.

Other members of the Councilate are the incarnations of souls who have achieved the grace by which they received the choice to ascend, yet did not do so. Their option to ascend came at the time of the last millennium of bygone times. These member souls may have been unable to choose at that time. By not choosing for whatever reason, which needs no judgment, the soul negated its place among the truly ascended. The soul remained bound to Earth. The incarnation of such a soul is an Ascended-Master, who has not actually ascended.

To receive the light frequencies that allow the individual soul to merge closer to the will of God and to become a greater part of the divine plan, the soul needs to vibrate ever higher. In the same way, becoming a greater part of the divine plan requires the angelic cadre to achieve higher states of collective consciousness.

1.5 The Work of the Gods

Beings on Earth are not alone! The heavens are full of angels, fairies, ghosts, and extra-dimensional beings that are often of great help in the work of enlightening planet Earth.

Throughout the past, Earth's third dimensional inhabitants have always been led (and even cajoled) by beings that existed with one foot on Earth and one foot in the heavens. The Aztecs and Mayans had their Gods, as do the Hindus and the Norse. The concept of a singular one-only God is less common. The concept of one God holds true for many religions. Similarly, each religious system that subscribes to multiple Gods also places a single deity at the head of all creation. Each system is valid. Each contributes to the flow of light to Earth.

The different groupings of deities that ruled different peoples on Earth arrived in the times and places appropriate for the gifts they offered the peoples they served. Humanity has developed on a number of cultural fronts at the same time. Therefore, it needed a variety of Gods to facilitate each developing area. Among the ancient Greeks, Venus served as the Goddess of beauty and love by providing an example for individuals to follow. Thor, in contrast, offered his people an example of strength and courage. Each God and Goddess offered the culture it served an example through which individual persons could aspire to higher purpose. Through higher purpose, light flowed to fulfill human evolution and development.

The process worked. Persons on Earth, entities who served as deities on Earth, entities who served the Earth but had no physical form, and
